The High School Cadets Drilling in Fine Form.

Principal Law says that the High School Cadets are better drilled now than they were two months later in the scason last year. The commendable desire of the boys to make a good showing in the Inauguration parade is probably the reason for this.

Another reason is that the good weather that has prevailed nearly all winter has enabled the boys to drill out doors nearly every drill day until within a

When it rains the drilling has to be done in the assembly room on the second floor of the school building and n the long corridors on the second and in the long corridors on the second and third floors. This space is but limited though, and the foot movements and skirmish drill can only be done at a disadvantage. Battalion drill can, of course, only be done out of doors. A good many of the boys want to parade on Washington's birthday, the 22d, but it is not likely that the battalion will be allowed to turn out. The reason is that the bays have no overcosts to their the boys have no overcosts to their They turned out a year ago and about froze.

They put on undershirts and extracoats and trousers and some of them wrapped layer on layer of newspapers around their bodies, but, after march-ing about the streets for a couple of hours, were as blue as their coats with the cold. So, though the boys are justly proud of their efficiency and like to be seen and people like to see them, they will probably not turn out on the 22d.

People who have seen the boys drill lately, men who know good drilling when they see it, are susprised at the efficiency and precision the boys have attained in the five months they have been drilling since the school year began. Of course, the entire battalion is virtually reorganized at the beginning of each school year by the influx of new of each school year by the influx of new
